

WAR CAUSES NEW IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

The government is doing much to help those detained at the Ellis Island Station during conflict—Commissioner Howe's efforts bearing fruit

IMMIGRANTS IN THE DETENTION

MISTER COMMISSIONER, would you mind if I ask you a question?" Dr. Frederick C. Howe, Commissioner of Immigration, was asked in this manner at least a dozen times while standing in a line through the detention ward at Ellis Island. The commissioner listened patiently first to one and then another, giving each a kindly answer, says a writer in the New York Herald. Among those who addressed him were an elderly Italian woman, who talked with a gesture expressive of the hopelessness with which she regarded her case; a young French woman, petite and earnest looking, who, when asked if she could cook, answered, "Tree food," and a young Russian Jew, who during a previous stay in this country served in Sing Sing and is a member of the Welfare League.

"They all want to get away," said Mr. Howe. "We are doing everything possible to make it more comfortable and homelike around here. We have removed many restrictions which heretofore existed, on the theory that the more freedom they have the more orderly they are inclined to conduct themselves."

"But with all this there is bound to be a feeling among those who are detained, for one reason or another, against their will that they are imprisoned. In later years, however, some of them, I am sure, whether they are admitted to the country or are sent back to their native land, will look back on their stay at Ellis Island as an incident in their lives that was not altogether unpleasant."

Most of the aliens now detained on the island have been there since the European war broke out. In all there were some 500 Germans, Hungarians, Poles, Russians and others being detained when Dr. Howe first took up his duties as commissioner of immigration. The majority of whom had been ordered deported because of the violation of the immigration statutes.

They were men, women and children, persons for the most part from small towns and villages of Europe. Before the order of deportation could be carried out the steamship companies which had brought most of these people over were forced to withdraw their vessels from service on account of the war, and consequently those to whom admission to the country had been denied were forced to remain on Ellis Island. Some of them have since been permitted to return to their country, either conditionally or unconditionally.

The problem of making life a little more pleasant for those who remain is one which Dr. Howe has tried to solve. He has endeavored to make most of the unfortunate persons under his jurisdiction personally acquainted with him. He has endeavored to answer all the questions which he frequently asks them, and he has endeavored to make them feel that they are not alone.

One afternoon last October Dr. Howe, while going around the station on one of his rounds of investigation, noticed a middle-aged woman, of neat, motherly appearance, with two pretty little girls cuddling up to her, sitting in the detention room. As the hour was late and he thought they were visitors Dr. Howe inquired what they were waiting for and if he could do anything for them.

The woman explained that she was British and with her children had been ordered deported. They had arrived from Great Britain about a month before, just had to friends in this country and no money and, therefore, had not been allowed to enter.

The healthy appearance of the two children, their pretty faces and their evident good breeding won over the commissioner on the spot, and he immediately interested himself in their case.

The woman's name was Mrs. Rita Horner, and her story was this: "When the war broke out she was living with her family, which, besides her husband, consisted of two sons and three daughters, on a dairy farm some miles out of Cape Town, South Africa. The country about them was rugged and wild and the girls, despite their young years, were forced to walk many miles every day to attend school. The sons, who were older, helped to work the farm."

"The husband and the two boys, along with most of the able-bodied men in that section, enlisted in the British army soon after war was declared and were sent to the front. They took part in the fighting in Belgium and northern France. One son was killed and the father seriously wounded. All trace of the other son had been lost. Mrs. Horner was unable to work the farm by herself, so she raised what money she could and went to England with her three daughters—Una, fifteen years, Piri, ten years old, and Rita, nine years old. They had not been in England long when Mrs. Horner decided to come to America."

On hearing Mrs. Horner's story Dr. Howe communicated with the authorities at Washington. He explained that these people were all strong and healthy, that the children were beautiful and that there was no danger of them becoming a public charge. Furthermore, he announced his willingness to be responsible for them, and a few days after the machinery had been set in motion word came back from Washington that Mrs. Horner and her children would be released in his custody.

Meanwhile the family had made friends with nearly everybody on the island. The watchman and guards petted the children and gave them many little presents. The attendants did all they could to make them comfortable.

Despite these attentions the children sometimes

Women have been given instruction in sewing and provided with material to make clothes for themselves and children. A school has been temporarily opened to teach the children, and the New York city public library authorities have donated a number of books printed in German and other foreign languages for the use of those who have a desire to read.

The men and women are permitted by minute intervals in the various detention wards, and as a result of these transactions the feeling which previously among those who have been long detained at the station is now cheerful than it was during the first few months of the war. Attempts to escape, which were frequent at one time, have come to an end.

"This island is the greatest portal in the world," said Dr. Howe. "It is a place where a great deal of human suffering is being done. In normal times nearly a million persons enter the country through it each year. They come largely from countries where the government means to put them in and out, they come to escape the political and social conditions which have become intolerable. They come with hopes of a fresh life of a fresh future of opportunity for themselves and their families. They carry with them the values of a series which have been in doubt, printed upon their minds from the letters which have gone back to Europe from friends and relatives already in this country."

"And the immigration laws of America have in effect, if not in so many words, said that American welcomed those who did not fall within the excluded classes, those afflicted by disease or who are likely to become a charge upon the community. It held out an invitation to the strong and able-bodied to come and share in the making of a new nation, free from disease and oppression of the old world."

"And of those who come over in per cent are admitted. The rest are rejected because they fall within the excluded classes. And it is when I became commissioner of immigration that the first contact of the alien with America should be one that would impress upon his mind the things for which America stands, that the treatment they should receive, the experience they should pass through and the country that has with officials wearing the uniform of the United States should be those of kindness, assistance and courtesy. They come for the most part with fear in their hearts, they fear government rather than love it. And their instinct is to expect something very different what they received at home."

"First impressions are lasting and it has been our effort at Ellis Island to make these impressions as democratic as possible, and to aid in as many ways as we could in protecting the immigrant and assisting him to his final destination. For the immigrant (immigrant), he is expelled. To prevent this as much as possible offices have been opened in New York city, one at the Barge office at South Ferry, and the other at 240 East Seventy-ninth street, to which the immigrant can go and procure aid, assistance and advice about matters that concern him. Through these offices he is directed to schools and to the naturalization offices. The offices cooperate with the police department and with all the many agencies in New York which have been created to aid the immigrant. At these offices there are employment agencies which find work for men and women and which are to distribute them to farming colonies to relieve the congestion in the cities."

"Similar progress has been made in the alien in transit to the West, in securing the best transportation facilities and otherwise relieving the immigrant from the dangers which beset him while reaching his ultimate destination."

"War conditions brought suddenly 500 men, women and children to Ellis Island who for some reason or other had to go back to their native land; they were not admissible to the country. Each of these cases has been investigated personally, their friends and relatives have been looked up, and in the great majority of cases they have been admitted on bond to some person willing to be responsible for them. Positions have been found for hundreds, from whom periodic reports are required as to how they are getting along. Only in very rare cases have they failed to make good. In many instances they have risen rapidly and are now earning very substantial salaries."

"Similar efforts are being made to promote educational advantages for the adult immigrant—to encourage night schools. For the last year the names of all children of school age have been copied and sent to the superintendents of education all over the country, in order that they might immediately place children in school upon their arrival at their destination. By these means the government comes in immediate contact with the second generation of immigrants and begins its assimilation process as soon as they reach this country."

During the winter months handball and other indoor games have been provided. Classes in gymnastics have been organized for the men. The

On Eugenics.
Prof. Herbert L. Flower said in an address on eugenics in Boston:
"Youth's point of view is better than age's when it comes to questions of eugenics."

"Here, for example, is a dialogue to prove my claim."

"A beautiful girl said to her fashionable mother:

"Yes, mother, dear, I like Mr. Goldsmith, but isn't he too old to be considered eligible?"

"The fashionable mother, compressed her lips and said:

"You, the country, my love," she said, "is too eligible to be considered old."

Boys Become Scarce.
For the first time in more than 20 years the Children's Aid society of New York is unable to furnish enough boys to families who want either to adopt them or care for them until the boys become of age. The reason for this is the campaign for military preparedness and the great demand for workers in war munition factories.

Almost every day letters come to the society headquarters asking for boys who have been trained at its farm schools.

Last month 41 of the society's boys, between twenty-five years old, enlisted in the army and navy service for boys. The munition factories take a large number of the older boys.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
